VISA News.

Acting Immigration Minister Alan Tudge says there are no plans to grant temporary visa holders a blanket exemption to Australia's coronavirus travel ban, despite pleas from those stranded overseas to be allowed back into the country.

Hundreds of skilled workers and international students have been unable to return to Australia without securing individual exemptions since the borders were closed to non-citizens on 20 March to limit the spread of coronavirus.

Visa holders caught out by the travel ban have told SBS News that despite calling Australia home for several years before the pandemic took hold, their applications on compassionate grounds have still been denied.

A petition signed by more than 12,000 people has also been tabled in federal parliament calling for visa holders to be allowed to return to their homes, families, and jobs in Australia.

But Mr. Tudge said the nation's borders would remain closed to everyone other than Australian citizens and permanent residents for the foreseeable future.

"Right now, our focus is on keeping those borders strong," he said on Thursday May 14th.

"It will be some time away until we see immigration back to anything like normal." 😞

While the announcement is not good for many, it does not STOP U from doing your initial studies ONLINE as many are NOW doing.
